

CONFIDENT

Synonyms: self-assured, poised, dignified, secure

Self-confident and outgoing, she has a strong belief in herself and her abilities.

Her self-reliant attitude ensures that when a job needs to be done she will forge ahead and do it, without depending on anything other than her own experience and know-how.

A take-charge individual, this writer makes her own judgments, trusting only herself to get things done right. She sees herself as a star performer and refuses to accept less than what she considers her due.

Given her strong level of self-confidence, it is obvious that she thinks well of herself and demands to be treated with respect.

Her sense of her own inner power and adequacy indicate someone who is able to achieve without outside applause and approval.

Your handwriting reveals a self-confident, assured individualist who handles life with aplomb.

When you are in the room, it is unlikely that you will be ignored.

Because you are so self-confident and assured, others may be intimidated by your strength.

Your handwriting is characterized by your strong sense of self-confidence and assurance. You know exactly what you want and have a pretty good idea of how to achieve it.

Having attained a feeling of personal strength, you believe in your ability to handle difficulties and solve problem situations without undue stress.

You move with a certain elegance that indicates someone who knows her own worth but is not arrogant.

Unlike many people who look to others for their answers, you look within. You learn from your experiences and count on a sense of inner-directedness to guide you.

Emotionally mature, you are proud to be who you are. Looking in the mirror holds no threat because you have withstood many tests in life and come through all the stronger.

At times she will simply say, as it were: "What the heck, I'll go out on a limb if I have to do what I think right."

In everyday dealings she has a charming way of concluding contacts, negotiations and so forth. She does not let personal difficulties in relationships undermine that talent, setting the personal aside.

Her belief in herself and her abilities confers upon this writer a "star quality." In other words, her level of self-assurance indicates someone who believes they should be treated extremely well.

He projects a sense of self-confidence and assurance that suggest someone who is focused on accomplishment and achievement.

You visualize yourself as a forceful, organized, and successful person.

You will fluff off criticism and react to it with complacency, privately dwelling on your good points--though your ego would probably bruise in a tough situation.

Not rating high in inner ease and self-assurance, this writer's response toward others may differ, depending on how secure he/she feels in a given situation.

Wavering belief in herself and her capabilities weakens the confident image she would like to project.

An inability to project oneself confidently to superiors or large groups can detract from this person's image of control.

He seems to have a presumptuous longing for prominence without the strength and drive to back it up, which can result in "more show than go."

The applicant doesn't have good self-knowledge, so he is unable to project a strong self-image.

This individual presents an image of herself that is not backed up by reality. She wants to be seen as far more outgoing and self-confident than she really feels inside.