

SECURITY, NEED FOR

Synonyms: safety, protection

In an unfamiliar environment she feels like a fish out of water. She has a certain amount of flexibility in her nature, but in order to assimilate changes to her environment, she needs time to adjust.

A sense of security and of being loved is central to your well being, so in a personal relationship, your partner will have to be willing and able to express herself without reservation.

Your partner cannot be too security-conscious, or she can look forward to some frustration and anxiety, since you like living on the edge!

A good home life is essential to your sense of security. Responsive and giving with loved ones, the caring you show for others is real and heartfelt; however, as with most people, it comes with a price tag. If not openly acknowledged for your warmth, you may resent being unappreciated.

Your greatest focus right now is on family, job, good health--all the basics of life.

The need for security and comfort are really important to you.

He may have a large bank balance and a freezer full of food, but it seems as if he never feels secure enough to relax.

Building up financial security is a number one priority in this person's life. She is focused on wealth and financial success, not because she loves money so much, but she needs the sense of security it can provide.

Your mother has been a great factor in your life. What about your father? You still need nurturing and tender loving care, although you'll be the first one to deny it.