

Space

S o or u

Form Level

....becomes alive within the intricacies, complexities, entanglements, convoluted, labyrinthine, Daedalian, tangled, and knotty pathways of their frenetic mental activities.

....seek out opportunities to affirm themselves by saying “no” to those that can oppose them.

....affirms their ideals, attitudes, and validates their conceptions of how things ought to be and be done by refusing to do what is demanded of them by people who do not in their mind know what is appropriate and right.

....denies personal faults, inadequacies, deficiencies, and lesser accomplishments when comparing themselves to others.

....a realization of being empty, hollow, abandoned, and lonely.

....a sense if nothingness haunt them.

....realizes there are gaps separating them from others.

....others are unconnected, without personal meaning, separate, and strangely distant.

....the core of the self is empty, vacant, a nothing.

....it is important to maintain distance and separateness from others to prevent themselves from being influenced and impacted by others emotionally.

(Meloy 1997, pp. 204-205)